Young Masters is a visual arts course, run over two terms per year for children aged from 5-11. Each term finishes with a free public exhibition at a central location in Bradford.

Young Masters cover drawing, observational drawing, painting, mixed media, sculpture, introduction to printing and design and many other artistic techniques while delivering art history at the same time.

Ever since Young Masters opened its doors, Idle Art Studio has been supporting their students through offering sibling discounts and SEN discounts and accommodating children with disabilities.

Young Masters has been a successful concept in delivering arts to the youngsters and organising exhibitions and went from strength to strength last year providing benefits to participants and communities involved.

Idle Art Studio has been successful in proposing to involve more children with SEN and disabilities and also to support gifted and talented children at Young Masters through social enterprise programmes.

Young Masters are Award Winners as part of 'Lead the Change' social enterprise programme run by Participate Projects and UnLtd, two organisations providing support to community orientated businesses.

The Award is to continue offering services to SEN children and supporting gifted and talented children. Therefore, Young Masters are now recruiting a small group of children to attend as a part of this new programme.
