

Lesson 11: David Hockney Animals in Clay –

Young Open at Cartwright Hall

The week you have been waiting for! This week we begin work for our submissions to Young Open 2017, an exhibition theming around David Hockney and Animals which is open to entries from under 16s across the district. This year's theme has been set as a response to Hockney's upcoming 80th birthday. We will be making clay creatures inspired by Hockney's love for animals.

This week will be using air drying clay, returning to paint and gloss our creations after half term. Hockney's most famous animal incarnations are paintings of his dog Little Booje, so we would invite you to bring along photographs of any pets you have to use as inspiration. No worries if you have no images, we will have some prepared for you.

More information about Young Open is here: <http://www.bradfordmuseums.org/whats-on/young-open-2017>

Materials:

- Air drying clay
- Individual trays
- Lolly pop sticks / Tooth picks / Modelling tools
- Water pots